REDS CLOSE TRAP, CAPTURE GOMEL

BREMEN AREA HAMMERED BY U. S. BOMBERS

BERLIN ONE-FOURTH DESTROYED; FIRES SWEEP CAPITAL

London, Saturday, Nov. 27 (AP)—RAF bombers blasted smoldering Berlin last night in the third aerial blow on the German capital in five night, after the greatest armada of U. S. heavies ever to take the air pounded the German North Sea port of Bremen and northern France targets in daylight yesterday.

It was the fifth successive night blow on the fire-gutted capital, swift Mosquitos getting in their telling stings when the RAF heavies stayed home. It was learned that several squadrons of RCAF heavy bombers joined the RAF last night to heap more loads of big bombs on the world's most-bomber city, now reported more than one-fourth destroyed.

Revenge Threats Repeated

First word of last night's operation, which came in the face of repeated Nazi cries that revenge would be taken on Britain in the form of secret weapons, came via the Berlin radio.

The RCAF announced that the first Canadian-built Lancaster—"the Ruhr express"—went on the night mission, and returning crewmen reported the sortie was successful.

No details of the raid came from official sources immediately, but crewmen said the German capital had been given a new dose of blazing destruction.

With their escort, the United States bombers, from the Eighth air force, formed an aerial umbrella of almost 1,000 planes for the attack on Bremen.

Heavy opposition was encountered by the American bombing force, which included both Flying Fortresses and Liberators, and the attackers lost 39 planes, 29 of them heavy bombers. A total of 56 German planes were shot down. American and RAF fighters escorted the U. S. bomber force.

Escort Sets Record

The official announcement of the operations—which followed a heavy RAF night smash at industrial Frankfort-Am-Main and a Thursday night Mosquito stab as fire-blackened Berlin—said that the "largest force" of British-based American heavy bombers ever employed in a daylight assault gave Bremen, an important industrial city of 375,000 people, its 107th raid of the war.

The force of heavy bombers used against Bremen yesterday exceeded the previous record group, estimated unofficially at 500 or more, which cascaded tons of high explosives on Wilhelmshaven on Nov. 3.

Of the 56 German planes shot out of the sky, escorting fighter planes set a new record for accounting for 36, and the bombers got 20. The previous high for U. S. Eighth air force Thunderbolts and Lightnings was 25 German planes destroyed in the Kassel raid on July 30.

Allied Loss 39

In the operations over France, U. S. Marauders and Typhoons attacked an airfield and military objectives in the Pasdecalais area and Bostons, Mitchells and Typhoons bombed targets near Cherbourg.

In addition to the 29 U. S. heavy bombers and five fighters missing, one lighter and four medium bombers were lost from the attacking force, bringing the total allied loss to 39.

Airmen reported that the force in yesterday's operations exceeded the record armada sent against Wilhelmshaven on Nov. 3.

A sizable force of RAF bombers gave the western German manu-

Marine Grit Described In Capture Of Tarawa

BY CHARLES McMURTRY

Pearl Harbor, Nov. 26. (AP)—The position of United States Marines of the second division who captured Tarawa was so critical on the first night that a determined Japanese counter-attack "might have exterminated them but the boys were so determined they never could have been driven off," Lt. Col. Evans F. Carlson said today.

The famed three times winner of the navy cross said in an interview, "It was really a blood-and-guts battle—just blood and guts."

(Navy Secretary Frank Knox said in Washington that the Marines on Tarawa sustained heavy losses.)

The 47-year-old colonel from Plymouth, Conn., made the initial landing on Betio Island in the Tarawa atolls as an observer and also made daily trips between the beachhead and flagship offshore in a small boat through Jap gunfire.

He said that by the end of the first day the Marines had secured three narrow beachheads only 100 to 150 yards deep.

The Japs virtually surrounded them.

Enemy troops were in strong positions ahead and between the beachheads. Some infiltrated into the lagoon where they sniped at Marines from the rear while crouched in abandoned landing boats.

Lt. Col. James Roosevelt, 36, of Marine raider fame, who accompanied the 165th regiment (old Fighting 69th), ashore on Makin, said its commanding officer, Col. Gardiner Conroy, of New York City, was killed because he forgot his own danger in concentrating on preparations to knock out a Jap strong point after the landing.

"I was only three feet from Colonel Conroy when he was killed," the president's son said in another interview.

"We were beating our way to a road on Butaritari (main island of the Makin atoll) when we ran into Jap machinegun fire aimed directly down the road.

"Colonel Conroy had been in the rear preparing an attack against a Japanese tank trap ahead. He brought up light tanks for the attack. He was so interested in directing the tanks and the preparations for the assault

SCANDAL BOOK BLACKENS GOP

Cosgressman Calls For Investigation; Willkie Brands Story Bunk

Washington, Nov. 26 (AP)—Asserting that the story of the 1940 Republican national convention, as told in a newly-published book—"One man—Wendell Willkie"—"makes the Teapot Dome Scandal look like a Sunday school affair," Rep. Rankin (D-Miss) today demanded a congressional investigation of the books' material.

Waving a copy of the book, written by C. Nelson Sparks, Republican and former mayor of Akron, Ohio, Rankin told his fellow congressmen, "it reveals the greatest saturnalia of fraud, bribery and corruption in the history of American politics."

Rankin urged an investigation, preferably by the Senate, because he said the book reveals a scheme to use "the corrupt Willkie machine" to purge certain senators in the next Democratic primaries.

Sparks was campaign manager in 1940 for Frank Gannett, a candidate for the Republican nomination for president.

His book is in the format of the paper-bound book of Willkie's "One World" and was published by the Rayner Publishing Company of New York.

Willkie, who was in Dallas today said:

"I haven't seen the book. From what I've heard it's sheer bunk.

JAPANESE SHIP LOSSES MOUNT

American Submarines Speed Up Attacks On Freighters

BY THOMAS A. REEDY

Washington, Nov. 26 (AP)—Surging U. S. sea and air forces in the Pacific have sunk Japanese shipping at the almost incredible rate of a vessel a day since Pearl Harbor.

Latest victims in the war of attrition were seven freighters, a tanker and a plane transport sunk by wide-ranging U. S. submarines.

These new sinkings, announced today by the navy, brought the submarine toll of sunk, probably sunk and damaged Japanese ships to 505.

The navy reported that all its forces now have definitely sent 745 of all types of Nippon shipping to the bottom in little more than 700 days of warfare . . . a rate considered far beyond the Tokyo admiralty's ability to replace.

Like ground troops exploiting a break through at a weak point, the navy simultaneously tipped that even greater submarine activity was in the offing. It urged volunteers from other branches to join special training classes for sub duty at New London, Conn., perhaps to meet the demands brought on by a rising tide of submarine launchings.

Port On Formosa Raided; 47 Enemy Planes Destroyed

Chungking, Saturday, Nov. 27 (AP)—Allied planes blasted the port city of Shinchiku on the northwest coast of Formosa on Thanksgiving day and destroyed 47 Japanese planes, a record number in this theater, it was announced here today.

Of the Japanese planes destroyed, at least 12 were declared to have been shot down in aerial dogfights, while all the Allied planes returned safely. The announcement said that all the bombs fell in the target areas and smoke enveloped the ground when the attackers departed.

(First announcement of the Formosa raid was made yesterday by the Tokyo radio. Formosa, 90 miles off China and some 200 miles north of the Philippines, was one of the Japanese bases for air attacks during the invasion of the Philippines.)

AIRMEN HALT NAZI PUSH ON ITALIAN FRONT

BRIDGEHEAD ACROSS SANGRO WIDENED BY 8TH ARMY

BY NOLAND NORGAARD

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Nov. 26 (AP)—Hammered by daylong relays of American and British fighter-bombers, Nazi troops have been sharply repulsed in every onslaught against Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth army, which improved its five-mile-long bridgehead across the Sangro river near Italy's Adriatic coast.

The enemy's fierce counterattacks from high ground overlooking the Eighth's hard-won positions slackened considerably, an official announcement said today, due largely to the demoralizing effect of thousands of anti-personnel fragmentation bombs flung from the air on German troop concentrations and trenches.

Guns Shell Trenches

Shaken Nazi prisoners blamed the ceaseless aerial pounding for the fact that Montgomery's veterans were able to consolidate and enlarge their bridgehead and pour reinforcements and essential supplies across the flooded Sangro. Enemy guns emplaced in the hills northwest of the stream continued to shell the Eighth's trenches and supply lines, however, despite the heavy bombing they had undergone since the battle began last Saturday.

Continued brisk ground fighting was reported near the mountainous middle of the Italian front, where Eighth army units won new heights northwest of Castel Di Sangro.

Activity on the Fifth army front on the western half of the line was limited to two violent 15-minute artillery duels as rain and mist reduced visibility to zero.

Railways Blocked

While generally unfavorable weather kept Allied heavy bombers on the ground, a statement from Lt. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz' air command disclosed that the three main railways on which the Germans depend for the bulk of their supplies at the Italian battle front have been closed to traffic for over a month by sustained bombing.

Enemy efforts to repair the vital are the central Apennine route from Bologna through Florence to Rome, the west coast line through Genoa and Leghorn to Rome, and the east coast track from Bologna through Rimini and Ancona to Pescara.

In long-range operations yesterday, American Mitchells bombed the Italian port of Ancona on the Adriatic while RAF Spitfires crossed that sea to shoot up Nazi vehicles near Dubrovnik in Yugoslavia. One Allied craft was lost during the day.

LANSING GRAFT SIFT CONTINUES

Judge Carr Declares He Will Issue More Warrants Soon

Lansing, Nov. 26 (AP)—Circuit Judge Leland W. Carr, conducting a one-man grand jury investigation of charges of graft and corruption in the legislature, declared today further warrants would be issued before he terminates the now three-months-old inquiry.

He disclosed that the grand jury, with utmost precautions for secrecy, has questioned a number of witnesses in recent weeks while preserving an outward appearance of being dormant.

He said this was done lest tipoffs to suspects result from identity of certain witnesses, explaining that the element of surprise sometimes is valuable in grand jury investigations.

"I would not be so rash as to predict now when we will close our investigation," he said, "but it would be reasonable to say that there will be some developments before the end of the year for you to report. We still have a lot of work to do."

Testimony in the inquiry is being taken under personal supervision of Attorney General Herbert J. Rushton, veteran prosecutor and criminal lawyer.

More Details Given On Patton Incident

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Washington, Nov. 26. — Congress heard from General Dwight D. Eisenhower today that General George S. Patton of Tunisian and Sicilian battlefield fame had been involved in two instances of treating enlisted men in "an unseemly and indefensible manner."

Eisenhower's report, in which he said he still thought he had done right in keeping Patton in command of the 7th army after reproving him and forcing him to apologize, was given the senate amid indications of congressional desires for still more news on the case—and why it was kept secret since August.

Patton was declared by his superior to have cuffed one soldier suffering from a nervous disorder and to have unduly upbraided another.

ASSASSINS SLAY ENTIRE FAMILY

Thanksgiving Eve Crime Proves Mystery For Ohio Officials

Washington Court House, O., Nov. 26. (AP)—A possibility that two assassins figured in the bizarre Thanksgiving eve slaying of the wealthy Elmer McCoy family was advanced tonight.

As Prosecutor John B. Hill studied this angle in an attempt to pierce the mystery about the crime, Sheriff W. C. Icenhower left suddenly on an unannounced journey outside Fayette county. Associates said he intended to "see a suspect."

McCoy, 59, a swine breeder; his wife Forrest, 64, and their 22-year-old school-teacher daughter, Mildred, were found shot to death at their farm yesterday.

Hill turned to the twin-assassin theory after explaining the positions of the bodies. He said:

"It is possible that one man killed the father in the barn and then the girl by the automobile. Both were shot once by a .38 calibre revolver.

"The mother might have heard the shot that killed her daughter just 60 feet away and come out on the screened-in porch to investigate, and a second man who was crouched down on the porch fired at her."

The prosecutor added that the killer must have been well known to the McCoys to have got close enough to the father and daughter to shoot them so that powder burns were caused.

Convoy Protected In Mediterranean; Heinkels Shot Down

Allied Headquarters In Algiers, Nov. 26. (AP)—At least eight German bombers were blasted out of the Mediterranean sky early tonight when a force of 30 Nazi planes attacked an allied convoy and in turn were engaged by American, British and French fighters of the coastal command.

An unspecified number of the planes shot down over the convoy were big Heinkel 177 bombers, one of the newest Nazi types. The HE177 has two propellors, each driven by two engines, and is designed for long range, with a wing span of 103 feet and a length of 65 feet.

Beaufighters flown by American and British pilots and Spitfires flown by Frenchmen tore into the attacking formation before the bombing could get well started, and knocked down at least seven victims.

The eighth fell to ships' guns.

An official announcement said the convoy suffered only negligible damage. Convoys operating in the Medterranean supply allied armies in Italy, Sicily, Sardinia and North Africa.

Churchill Reported Talking With Stalin

Bern, Nov. 26. (AP) — Foreign diplomatic circles who should know reported tonight that Prime Minister Churchill is conferring with Premier Stalin, either as a prelude to a tri-partite meeting including President Roosevelt, or as a substitute for it.

British Foreign Secretary Eden was said to be with Churchill.

No confirmation here is possible, but informants believed the talks had been in progress for at least two days.

AUSSIES TAKE STRONG POINT OF NIPPONESE

JAPS DRIVEN OUT OF SATTELBERG, NEW GUINEA

BY MURLIN SPENCER

Southwest Allied Headquarters, Saturday, Nov. 27. (AP) — Sattelberg village on a 2,400 foot spur overlooking New Guinea's Huon Gulf—from whose coast General MacArthur is in position to invade New Britain—was stormed and captured Friday by Australians who strewed the high ground with dead Japanese and seized much war equipment, including field artillery.

The Japanese survivors retreated north along the Wareo trail after yielding their first major point in the area since the fall of Finschhafen, 8 miles to the southeast, on Oct. 2.

Job Was Tough

The victory, achieved by Australians who had to overcome the most difficult type of mountain and dense jungle in addition to fierce enemy resistance, brought to a close military operations which started Sept. 21 with a landing on the coast north of Finschhafen.

The series of assaults culminating in Sattelberg's capture started Nov. 17 when medium tanks were thrown into action.

A double envelopment, plus a direct frontal assault, was the strategy used. The Aussies closed in until the Japanese defenses virtually were surrounded with the northern jungle trail the only possible means of escape.

The three Aussie forces were supplied throughout the campaign by American amphibious engineers.

The almost precipitous cliffs on which Sattelberg stands, were well adapted to Japanese defense strategy. The Aussies were forced to overcome fixed defenses and dugouts.

Tanks were unable to follow the main trail almost to the village itself and played an important part in clearing the way for the infantry.

Four Villages Seized

United States "Black Cats" planes hit a Japanese cruiser 65 miles northwest of Rabaul the night of Nov. 24 with two bombs, causing explosions. Fires were started below the decks.

The "Black Cats" are Catalina bombers.

In addition to capturing Sattelberg mission, the Aussies seized four nearby villages as they cleared out the adjacent area.

The drive from Finschhafen was over mountains and through dense jungles. The capture gave MacArthur a firmer hold on the Huon peninsula which forms, with the Huon Gulf to the southeast a potential springboard from which to move across Damphier Strait and invade the key enemy island of New Britain.

Allied bombers were active, attacking Wewak, to the northwest of the jungle front on New Guinea, Buka, the northernmost Solomon island, and Matchin Bay and the Buin-Faisi area of Bougainville.

MUSTERING-OUT PAY IS PLANNED

Demobilized Service Men And Women Promised Financial Aid

BY WILLIAM T. PEACOCK

Washington, Nov. 26 (AP) — Congress got a $7,000,000,000 program today for financial aid to demobilized service men and women. Introduced after President Roosevelt urged such action, it calls for:

Up to $300 mustering out pay on leaving the service.

$15 to $25 a week unemployment compensation, depending on the number of dependents, if without a civilian job at any time during the first 15 months after leaving the service.

Social security credits, based on pay of $160 a month, for time spent in the service.

The program was introduced in four separate bills. Identical measures covering unemployment compensation and social security credits were introduced in the Senate by Senator Wagner (D-NY), George (D-Ga) and Clark (Mo), acting jointly, and in the House by Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the Ways and Means committee.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky and Chairman May (D-Ky) of the House military committee introduced bills providing for mustering out pay. May said the plan had the backing of the White House.

LATIN AMERICA GETS APOLOGY

Good Neighbor Spending Plays Uncle Sam For Sucker, Say Solon

Washington, Nov. 26 (AP)—Senator Butler (R-Neb) pictured "good neighbor" spending by the United States today as a wild extravagance in which Uncle Sam is played for a "sucker." Vice President Wallace replied with an apology to Latin America "for the shocking slur."

Butler called the expenditures south of the border a rumbling form of dollary diplomacy which is winning us, at the best, the "sucker" label and, at the worst, a suspicious mistrust of motive.

The midwest republican had hardly finished reading sections of a bristling report in which he told the Senate also of stories of rampant graft by Latin American officials handling U. S. funds when Wallace issued this statement:

"As vice-president of the United States, I feel compelled to express my deep regret to our Latin American allies in the war for the shocking slur which has been made against them today.

"The fantastic figures which have been used in an apparent effort to discredit the good neighbor policy will be refuted by the agencies involved."

Chinese Exclusion Act Repeal Sought To Correct Mistake

Washington, Nov. 26 (AP)—Acting to correct what President Roosevelt has described as "an historic mistake," the Senate passed today and sent to the White House a bill repealing the 61-year-old Chinese exclusion acts.

The measure substitutes for a ban on Chinese immigration the application of a quota under which 105 members of the race would be admitted annually and Chinese residents would be eligible for naturalization as United States citizens.

Passage was by a voice vote, with Senator Reynolds (D-NC) shouting an emphatic "no".

VAMPIRE DRIVER SOUGHT

Petoskey, Mich., Nov. 26 (AP)—George Rotter, 73, of Alanson, former member of the Emmet county board of supervisors, died yesterday as a result of injuries incurred in a hit-run accident Wednesday night. Rotter was struck by an automobile while walking on highway US-31 near his home. The car did not stop.

ESCAPE ROAD NARROWS FOR 300,000 MEN

NAZIS LOSE LAST BASTION EAST OF DNIEPER

BY JAMES M. LONG

London, Nov. 26 (AP)—Gomel, guardian of the Whte Russan road to Poland and the last Nazi bastion east of the Dnieper river, fell today to encircling assault by a Russian army which was swiftly closing in from the north and south to trap perhaps 20 Nazi divisions, or about 300,000 men.

The Gomel victory, by a "bold outflanking maneuver", was announced in a special order of the day by Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin a few hours after the Germans declared they had destroyed the town and fallen back.

Russians Plunge Westward

Subsequently the Soviet daily communique, recorded by the Soviet Monitor from a Moscow broadcast, said the Russians, plunging westward in a new offensive had advanced north of Gomel, along the lower reaches of the Berezina river, and in what the Russians called "the Sozh and Dnieper territory in the Gomel area."

The newest advances pinched still tighter the narrow German escape corridor from Gomel to Bobruisk, now less than 50 miles wide. The only railroad, to Zhlobin and Bobruisk, now was well within Soviet artillery range.

Berlin Admits Retreat

The communique also reported continued successful defense against the German counterattack hammering at the Kiev bulge in the areas of Korosten, Cherniakhov and Brusilov.

The Germans, meanwhile, declared that the Russian offensive had mushroomed over a 100-mile front from Gomel north. Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, Berlin radio commentator, said "since the evacuation of Gomel Soviet forces form one solid offensive front from Rechitsa to a point west of Krichev."

Moscow dispatches said the new Russian offensive in the north, announced after three days of successful fighting yesterday, had smashed to the upper Dnieper river and cut the motor highway, one of the most important lateral lines of communication in White Russia.

Frost Hardens Ground

The new offensive was called a "major manoeuvre" by Moscow dispatches which said the Russians were moving swiftly along terrain hardened by early frost. Highwater mark was said to be within 50 miles of Bobruisk, a White Russian city which the Germans once used as a base for bombing Moscow, and 120 miles from the White Russian capital of Minsk.

In the advance a strong German defense line, which the Soviet army newspaper Red Star said the Germans hoped to hold throughout the winter, was broken.

The surprise of the attack was so complete, Red Star said, that German reinforcements, called from the rear, moved into villages already occupied by the Red army, and Nazi staff officers, bringing orders from German general headquarters, walked into Russian hands.

WILL COLLECT WASTE PAPER

School Children Launch Intensive Drive Next Week

An intensive campaign to collect all available waste paper will be opened by Escanaba school children next week.

Weekly collections will be made. Persons having waste paper they wish to dispose of are asked to call their nearest grade or high school building.

Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production board, has called upon history and the people of America to conserve and save paper.

"The great quantities of wrappings, boxes and cartons ordinarily used during the holiday season, added to normal supplies of old newspapers, magazines, bags and the like—if saved now and promptly turned in to local salvage organizations—will go a long way toward relieving the serious shortage now existing," declared Nelson.

"Also, by avoiding unnecessary wrappings at home and at retail stores, and by using shopping bags and other paper saving containers, a huge quantity of vitally needed paper and paperboard can be conserved."

The WPB chairman said that newspaper collections have not as yet come up to demands. Fast increasing military uses of paper and manpower deficiencies in pulpwood forests have created a Number One material shortage problem, he added.

He asked cooperation to help meet the emergency by stretching usefulness of every bit of paper, every paper bag or paper box or container, and to save and bundle every scrap of waste paper in the home, plant or office, so that they can be delivered through salvage agencies to the paper mills as quickly as possible.

Communication

SEEKS FR. MOCKLER'S HEIRS

Nov. 23, 1943

Escanaba, Press,
Escanaba, Mich.

Dear Sirs: I will sincerely appreciate it, if you will take due notice to publish the following, as we are trying to trace the direct heirs, or next to kin of Rev. Father John Mockler, probably otherwise known as Richard, but this might have been a brother to Father John.

It appears that the Rev. Father John Mockler, with a sister, who afterwards married a man by the name of Fred Lee, came to St. Ignace, Mich., where he officiated at a Catholic parish, this probably being around 1901. It further appears that Mr. Lee published at the time "The St. Ignace Enterprise," now out of existence, with probably Mr. Lee now dead.

The Rev. Father Mockler died in Escanaba where he was pastor of his church for many years. A niece lived with him, and she, if living, we would like to trace at this time who probably knew of his business affairs, and Mrs. Lee whom we understand resides in St. Ignace, would no doubt know where the niece may be found, if living, or, other direct relatives.

It further appears that the Rev. Father John Mockler possessed large blocks of mining stocks at the time of death, in which the late Dr. James Douglas, then president of Phelps Dodge Corporation, was also interested in, and we are of the opinion that these stocks were sold to investors in Michigan and Jerome, Arizona. About $12,000 was invested in these stocks by Father Mockler but the certificates were made out to "Richard Mockler," but this name was corrected to Father John by one of the relatives, Dr. James M. Walsh, M. D., Midvale, Utah, who has rendered us much assistance in connection with another relative and our client at Jerome, Arizona, John M. Sullivan, a well known mining man at that place. These stocks are in the possession of the undersigned.

Trusting to have the pleasure in hearing from you, and thankfully appreciating that your Press will give this due attention, I am,

Truly yours,
Edward Smith,

We Are to Blame

REPRESENTATIVE Hatton W. Summers, of Texas, is not a nationally known figure but he comes rightly by the unofficial title given him by his colleagues, as "philosopher" of the House. Mr. Summers doesn't make frequent speeches, but when he does he is listened to. Recently he hit the nub of this nation's most momentous domestic problem when he assailed the common, modern day practice of dumping local problems in the laps of official Washington. He points out that local self government has deteriorated to the almost non-existent point, through the unwillingness or inability of local governing units to solve their own problems. Reference of these local problems to a congress, that is made up of only humans, has resulted in the creation of numberless bureaus and commissions that have assumed the authority of making the laws that govern our people.

"We all believe in democracy—democracy operated through representative government," Representative Summers recently said. "Why is then, that in a land where everybody proclaims his devotion to it, representative government is withering before our eyes.

"The bureaucrat is blamed for this. But he is not the cause. He is the effect. The seat of the trouble lies far deeper.

"Our whole political system is based on the principle of local self government. But two forces have been destroying this principle. One is the demand of the people for the federal government to intervene in the problems of every community and every class. The other is the ever growing practices of passing all these problems on to the government at Washington. The last war gave this a big push. The post war dislocation hurried it. The great depression raised it to avalanche proportions. The present war is completing the job. Every town and state and every trade association and trade union, every class and group and desperate minority brings its problems to Washington. And Washington is gladly accepting that responsibility. Not being able to handle the impossible burden itself, Congress, of necessity creates bureaus and passes on the overload to the bureaucrats."

No one can deny that this a true picture of this nation's government today. Bureaucrats assume the power to make laws and directives, that are presumed to set up a national pattern to solve a local need.

The result is UNREPRESENTATIVE government.

Only when we start solving our own local problems, without reference to Washington, can representative government be reestablished.

Air Age Coming

MODERNIZATION of Michigan's airplane control laws will be sought in legislation to be submitted to the legislature at its forthcoming special session.

It has been suddenly discovered that Michigan's existing laws are inadequate to meet the needs of intra-state aviation in the postwar era. Legislation is consequently being proposed to put commercial airplane traffic under regulations similar to those governing the railroad, bus and truck companies.

We have talked of the coming air age for more than a decade now, but obviously were not serious about it or thought it was merely the dream of visionary people. As a result, we have gone about preparing for the aviation age by building airports, primarily to make jobs for the unemployed. Now, we must do more to actually serve the needs of this new form of transportation.

Aviation is coming of age. The Great Lakes Greyhound Bus company, with years of experience in the transportation field, thinks well enough of it to file applications for permission to operate a network of helicopter routes all over Michigan. Other aviation concerns are looking into the possibilities of new lines in this state and elsewhere in the United States. They really mean business.

Railroads on Their Toes

AMERICAN railroads have served notice that they will not take a back seat with the airlines and other forms of transportation when it comes to bidding for the postwar passenger business.

For years, the railroads had the passenger business much to themselves. Then came the private automobile, the bus and airplane, and for awhile made great inroads in their revenue. Railroads are large, ponderous creatures, and changes are difficult and take much time. Finally realizing that the traveling public wanted speed and comfort, they inaugurated the so-called streamliner. The Upper Peninsula, fortunately, is being served in the "Peninsula 400" by one of the finest of these new trains.

Introduction of helicopter and other airplane passenger routes offers new threats to the railroads. But the railroads will be in there pitching. They plan to reduce fares, both coach and Pullman, immediately following the war; introduce lightweight, streamlined coaches and Pullmans, scrapping all old cars; advertise wisely; pay greater attention to comfort and convenience of passengers; speeding up of passenger schedules by eliminating curves, reducing stops and improving mail and express loading and unloading.

The railroads are determined to meet their competition on even terms.

Waste Paper Campaign

THE American Newspaper Publishers association is spearheading the new campaign for the collection of waste paper, which will get underway in as many cities as possible in the nation on Dec. 6.

Waste paper, which in peacetime is so plentiful that it becomes a household nuisance, today is a vital war material necessary in the manufacture of essential military equipment. The demand is so great that normal trade channels are unable to supply enough waste paper to keep mills running full time and to enable them to meet all overseas and home front war requirements.

At the present time there are about 20 to 25 shut down for lack of waste paper, and inventories are dangerously low in many others. There is an abundance of waste paper in the home, in the store, and in the factory. But most of this never reaches the mill. Shipments of waste paper to the mills must be increased at least 167,000 tons a month. The War Production Board estimates that over 1,250,000 tons of salvable paper are available every month and that half of this, or 667,000 tons, will keep the mills running at peak production. Collections are now running about 500,000 tons a month.

Waste paper has many wartime uses. The list includes: Air force emergency packs, ammunition containers, blood plasma containers, building paper and board for cantonments, cartridge paper, charts, gas mask canisters, grenade containers, helmets and helmet accessories, posters for recruiting, targets and scores of other uses.

The slogan for the forthcoming waste paper drive is: "Save A Bundle A Week —Save Some Boy's Life."

DEATH TOLL MOUNTS

(Marquette Mining Journal)

No amount of warning or punishment for carelessness has much effect, it appears, on the deer hunter who shoots at anything moving, or ignores safety rules in the handling of his rifle.

With the season only half gone the number of hunters killed in Michigan is 13 (five in the Upper Peninsula), one more than were killed during the entire season last year, two more than the season's toll in 1941 and only one less than the total for 1940, which has never been exceeded and was equalled only once, in 1937.

Because there will be thousands of hunters in the deer areas the rest of this week, or at least until Thanksgiving day, the number of deaths is almost certain to be increased. It is a shameful record and because it recurs annually it is most unfortunate that nothing, apparently, can be done about it. Deer hunting is an excellent sport which affords thousands of persons the only respite they have from their labors. Because of meat rationing it will provide this year thousands of pounds of venison for family consumption in place of unavailable beef and pork. But a heavy price is being paid in human life, to say nothing of the scores of men wounded in non-fatal accidents, and one wonders whether it is worth what it costs.

The only legal kill is a buck with visible horns. But too many hunters can't, or don't, wait to see horns. They shoot horses, cows and other hunters, mistaking them for deer, bears and whatnot. They shoot at trees, moving twigs or leaves. Some even shoot if they hear something they think sounds like a deer. Some have been shot by their own hunting companions. Comparatively few victims are felled by stray bullets or by accidental discharges of their own guns.

It is a sorry business, chargeable in the main to human recklessness and criminal disregard for the safety of one's fellow men.

Some built-in conveniences in a small apartment really are built inconveniences.

There is one price you can be certain will drop shortly—that on 1943 calendars.

Take My Word For it . . Frank Colby

HANDBOOK OF COMMON-SENSE ENGLISH

* * *

Q. Please discuss such sentences as, "They all went but (he-him)."

A. In such sentences, "but" may be construed as either conjunction or preposition. The authorities are not in agreement. Note the distinction:

Preposition
Everyone went but me.
All had books but him.
All were there but her.

Conjunction
Everyone went but I.
All had books but he.
All were there but she.

My own feeling is that "but," by anology with "except" and "save," is clearly a preposition meaning "with the exception of," and therefore calls for the objective me, him, her, us, them.

My newly revised pamphlet on the Personal Pronouns explains this and many other tricky problems, and gives a simple non-technical key. Any reader may have a free copy by sending a stamped (3c), self-addressed envelope to Frank Colby, in care of this paper.

Q. I've always understood that the double possessive is incorrect. Yet I constantly run across such double possessives as, "She was a friend of my mother's."

A. The double possessive is not only correct, it is sometimes necessary to avoid confusion. For example, there is quite a difference in meaning between, "This is a picture of the king," and "This is a picture of the king's."

Q. We have an argument for you to referee. A. says "I woke up." B. says "I waked up." Who is right?

A. All these forms are correct: I woke; I woke up; I waked; I waked up; I awoke; I awaked; I wakened; I awakened.

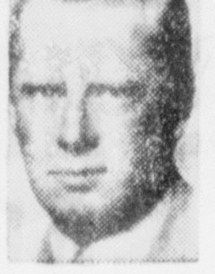
Q. What would you call one of a pair of dice?

A. The correct singular is die. This exwords when he led his army across the plains the meaning of Caesar's famous Rubicon: "The die is cast."

Fair Enough

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York — If General Eisenhower thinks General Patton is indispensable he should be allowed to keep him on the job, for certainly the public humiliation inflicted on Patton for berating and beating a sick soldier and kicking up a scene in a hospital cannot be regarded as a temptation to other officers to do likewise. But the incident can serve to revise a popular notion that a profane tongue and a brutal disposition are the characteristics of a good soldier. Patton happens to be a good soldier in spite of these faults and, while his absolute fearlessness and his drive and ability are recognized by others, he is not admired personally.



Pegler

The majority of the officers of the regular army are remarkably well-mannered and clean of speech and gentlemen in the true meaning of the word. The reserves and the new officers who did not go through the military academy are about as they were in civilian life, subject, however, to any improvement that might have been wrought by the code of the regulars.

—MOST OF THEM DECENT—

We had in our public life a few years ago a former officer who, all his life, both in the army and in his civilian career, affected a hard-boiled manner and who was encouraged to excesses by his publicity which presented him as merely rugged when he was, in fact, so profane and vulgar that sensitive people sometimes gave him up. On one occasion he was rebuked by a civilian at a social gathering for using disgusting language which he apparently thought was only picturesque. Another officer, a general who had been his classmate at the military academy, once commented privately that he was sick and tired of hearing civilians remark that his old comrade was the salt of the earth, for he regarded him as just a dirty man and recalled that in their cadet days he was shunned by many of the corps for jjust that reason. However, the man did have ability and great energy and imagination, and so enjoyed a fairly successful career, notwithstanding.

Those who have a chance to associate with officers at West Point cannot fail to be impressed by their gentlemanly manners and speech. I have sat through meals and spent hours at evening gatherings with groups of them and noted the absence of expressions which most civilians allow themselves for purposes of emphasis or to attract attention. This certainly does not mean that they are prigs, for if an occasion requires force and emphasis they usually have plenty at their command. And, although Patton's bravery is as famous as his bullying ways, there are others just as brave who also have the respect and the deep personal loyalty of their subordinates.

—A GOOD LESSON—

Patton was with General Pershing in Mexico and went to France with him as a Captain and may have thought he was using Pershing as a model, because Pershing could swear resoundingly when he was in a temper and he wasn't what anyone could have called a fatherly commander. But Pershing did have dignity and would not have encouraged the war correspondents to call him old blood and guts, a title in which Patton apparently gloried. For contrast, there was another Captain who went to France and caught Pershing's eye who has come far since then without ever resorting to the language of the Gutter or the manners of a thug. That would be General George Marshall, who has outrun Patton all the way, and might be President of the United States some time after the war.

The punishment imposed on Patton was absolutely unique and undoubtedly will curb him, for now he surely understands that he will be watched closely and that if he ever repeats the offense he will be relieved and probably court-martialed. It might even teach him to clean up his language for he must realize that he has overplayed his role in which he imposed on men who couldn't talk or strike back. All this being so, General Eisenhower would seem to have acted with wisdom as well as force and originality, for it probably means that he keeps a strong, able officer and cures an evil condition which had to be challenged some time. If Patton had been allowed to get away with this outrageous conduct, then every other officer and noncom would have been justified in acting likewise.

Good Morning!

By The Bugler

NO ANSWERS—The Bugler's question on how you report the number of points on a buck's rack of horns met with no takers. Not one answer to the question has been received, and queries among hunters calling in to proudly tell the weight and number of points their kill carried in life show a sharp divergence of opinion on this important question.

Dunathan

For one thing, say the hunters wisely, there is a difference between points and prongs on a deer's horns. For another thing, whether you count the points on one or both horns and so report them depends on the number of points. For instance, if it is a buck with say six points total on both horns, you report it as six. If it is a big buck with a total of 26 points on both horns, you split the total and call it 13. Don't ask The Bugler why—he hasn't been able to obtain a satisfactory answer to the whole thing himself.

Perhaps there still remains one or two unwounded deer hunters this late in the season who will take a few minutes off and set The Bugler right in this controversy.

DEAR BUGLER:

I've got a pet peeve too, and this time it's not the radio, but the Press.

Why oh why do they put in the cross-word puzzles one day, then skip two or three days, then that day they publish the answer to "yesterday's puzzle."

Where are the puzzles in between?

Sometimes one word stumps me and next day I eagerly look for the answer—and no puzzle that day or for two or three days more.

Either take them out altogether or keep them in.

I have something else to bring up. It is this:

Yesterday we got a card from the Delta County War Fund thanking us for our donation. There was a three cent stamp on the envelope, and the cards must have cost quite a sum too.

Why thank us? We were all glad to donate. If they wanted to thank each member that gave, why not put a card of thanks in the Press? Look at all the money the boys won't get that went into the cards and stamps.

Yours truly,
A Gladstone Reader

Dear Gladstone Reader:

Your letter presents two questions which The Bugler would like to answer for you, and for the benefit of other readers as well. The answers are not a defense, because The Bugler feels that no defense is required. It is an explanation more than anything.

So let's take up question No. 1: What has become of the daily cross-word puzzle?

It is a wartime casualty. Perhaps you have read that newspapers are cutting down on their use of newsprint paper, which can only mean that sacrifices have to be made in the material that makes a newspaper informative and entertaining. Editors have a tough job deciding what to leave out and what to include. War news, the important local, state, national and international stories must go in. That leaves the feature material which can be cut—and a cross-word puzzle is considered a dispensable feature. Perhaps you are right about either running the puzzles daily or leaving them out altogether. But place the blame where it belongs, on Hitler and his buck-toothed pals from Japan.

Now question No. 2: Why did the Delta County War Fund committee mail personal thank you cards to War Fund contributors?

First and most important reason, The Bugler is told, is a sincere effort to build a feeling of good will among people of the county, thereby assuring the success of future War Fund and Red Cross campaigns. The War Fund drive was an outstanding success. The committee from the chairman down to every solicitor worked hard, and the people of the county responded generously to their appeal. The committee appreciated this, believed the thank you cards would add a personal touch which past campaigns have lacked. The reaction to the cards, in general, has been favorable. Perhaps the good will thus accomplished may pave the way for a continued Delta County Community Chest, which will incorporate finance drives of all agencies. This alone would be worthwhile. It should also be explained that every fund raising drive must have an operating budget. You will find the budget proportionately low in the War Fund campaign considering the amount raised—the largest in any single effort in the county's history.

You mention "the money the boys won't get that went into cards and stamps." Do you know that in many Upper Peninsula counties the War Fund campaign has been a miserable failure? Perhaps a little more good will work, a more organized and vigorous campaign, could have raised many additional thousands for our fighting men's comfort. Here in Delta county the USO, which will receive half of the War Fund contributions, will get its full share. In other counties where the drive failed, they will get less. A few thousand cards, a little publicity, might have helped there.

NEW YORK — Orson Welles took his wife, Rita Hayworth, to the Hollywood preview of the new 20th Century-Fox film, "Jane Eyre". The studio gave top-billing in this picture to Joan Fontaine . . . After the preview, the studio officials noticed the thousands of people following Mr. and Mrs. Welles. "Maybe we should give Orson top-billing," one official suggested to Harry Brand, the studio's press-agent. "Look at the crowds following him" . . . "That doesn't prove anything," Brand replied. "Because once even I had crowds like that following me. That was at one of our previews ten years ago—when I carried Shirley Temple in my arms.

ARTUR RUBINSTEIN, the pianist, was asked, at a party this week, whether he expects to go South in February. "I never reveal my plans," said Rubinstein. He explained that once before, at a dinner party he had mentioned that he was going to Madrid, the following summer, because he enjoyed the bull-fights so much. One of the dinner guests was an opera star, an old friend of his. She made a note of the summer-date. And when Rubinstein arrived in Madrid, she surprised him by suddenly appearing there. Madrid was crowded, and he fought with the hotel managers to find accommodations for her. Then he had to fight with the bull-ring owners to find a seat for the lady. "Then, as soon as the first bull came into the ring, the lady told me that blood sicken her, and I had to take her home." said Rubinstein. "From then on —I never tell anyone about my vacation plans."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Washington—One of the great jobs of this war is the Air Transport Command flying thousands of bombers, transports, cargo planes across the big, black oceans which separate the U. S. A. from the many theatres of war. But while recognition of this great job is universal, most people do not realize that there are two parts to the Air Transport Command. One is the Army. The other is civilian and is let out by contract to the big air companies.

Pearson

Today when you go down the street, you may see a man in a flying officer's uniform. If you notice that his wings are bronze with a A. T. C. in the center, you will know that he is a civilian employee working for United Air Lines, T. W. A., American Airlines, Pan-American, Eastern Air Lines or some other company which flies planes on contract for the rmy.

Unfortunately, a bitter feeling exists on the part of regular Army air officers toward this division inside the Air Transport Command.

The reason for the bitterness is the fact that these civilian pilots get all the advantages of the Army, but with salaries two and three times as great. For instance, thousands of Second and First Lieutenants, with a sprinkling of Captains, are pushing planes back and forth across the ocean every week for the regular Army pay of around $300 a month or less. Meanwhile, civilian carriers, because they fly under contract to the Army, get from $650 to $1,150 for Captains on trans-Atlantic runs, plus $8 per day expense money for every day that they are away from their home base.

Army airmen have nothing against these civilian pilots personally, but they do vigorously resent the system. They pay tribute to the fact that, in the early days before Pearl Harbor, the commercial companies jumped in and helped the Army do a speedy, miraculous job. But now, with the Army well trained and with excellent transport pilots on hand, the young Army pilots wonder why this cost-plus contract system continues. They especially wonder whether the position of General C. R. Smith (former American Airlines' President); Lt. Col. John Steele (Pan-American operations manager); Col. Harry Fritz (T. W. A.); Jack Frye (T. W. A.) and many others in the Air Transport Command has anything to do with it.

—AIRLINES LOOKING TO FUTURE—

One thing that particularly gripes the Army airmen is the manner in which they think the commercial companies are hoarding personnel, ready to slip back to the juicy, global airlines after the war is over. They will have the pilots all trained to fly these new routes, familiar with every airport of the world. And these civilian A. T. C. pilots will hold seniority, will have been in positions of trust, building every day for the future of the commercial companies.

Meanwhile, when the war is over, the lieutenants and captains of the regular Army will have to stand in line at the employment offices of the airlines—many of them because they resigned from their commercial companies and enlisted in the Army.

Furthermore, these young Army pilots point out that the big commercial companies are hoarding pilots and are keeping a large reserve of personnel. This they can do when they work on a cost-plus basis. For instance, one commercial company had one hundred co-pilots sitting around Washington getting $400 to $800 a month until they threatened to quit unless they were kept busy. T. W. A. inaugurated a ground school to keep them occupied and keep them quiet.

Another unfair fact which Army pilots point to is that the commercial companies operate the big four-motor jobs, while the Army takes over the twin-motor planes. With the two-motors, if one motor gives out, it's usually curtains. But the civilian pilots with four-motored bombers handle big reserves of gasoline and have a much higher safety factor.

That unfortunately is the feeling of young pilots who resent the fact that their government is spending the taxpayers' money to do a job which they are glad to do at much lower cost, instead of which the big airlines feather their nests for the future.

—WILLKIE SEWS UP INDIANA—

Moguls of the American Legion who got together recently in Indianapolis spent most of their time discussing who was going to be the Republican candidate. It was generally agreed, even by some Democrats, that whoever got the GOP nomination was just about as good as elected.

Two stalwart Democrats in this category were Frank McHale, campaign manager for Paul McNutt, and Elder Bowman, organizer of the McNutt "2 percent Club" and former treasurer of the American Legion. They told Republican friends, however, that Willkie definitely had Indiana sewed up. The politicians had warned Willkie he would have to have his home state unequivocably as the first step. So he had come out to Rushville and spent several weeks there last summer and had the Indiana delegates in his pocket.

—WASHINGTON'S INDESTRUCTIBLE BONE—

Outspoken Senator Homer Bone's reputation for toughness preceded him to the Mayo Sanitarium at Rochester, Minnesota, where the Washington Senator underwent a major operation on his hip. When Bone, now back in the capital, active as ever, was being examined prior to the operation, he asked a doctor:

"Doc, do you think this will lay me out?"

"Senator," replied the medico, "from the reports I have heard about you, we couldn't lay you out with an ax."

NIGHT PARKING BANNED DEC 1

Police Chief Asks Motorists To Check Car Equipment

Effective Wednesday night, Dec. 1, the city ordinance prohibiting the night parking of automobiles on city streets during the winter months will become effective, Chief of Police Mike Ettenhofer said yesterday.

From Dec. 1 to March 31, inclusive, the ban on night parking is effective so that city plowing crews can handle the snow removal task efficiently.

The police chief declared that although the streets are free of snow now as a result of unusually nice weather, the weather conditions at this time of the year are unpredictable and that a heavy snowfall may result at any time.

In connection with the approach of winter, the chief of police issued his annual reminder to motorists that extreme caution must be exercised throughout the winter season to reduce the traffic casualty toll.

Check Safety Equipment

"Statistics gathered by the National Safety Council show that traffic accidents increase 40 per cent in winter months in the northern states," Ettenhofer said. "The distance required to stop an automobile on ice or snow is from five to 10 times that needed for stopping on dry pavement. Reduced visibility by snow and fog and longer hours of darkness also are contributing factors."

The chief of police advised motorists to check the safety equipment on their automobiles, particularly the brakes. Other equipment that should be examined to be certain that they are in good working order are windshield wiper, defroster, lights, etc., he said.

The practice of lowering tire pressures in the winter time is not recommended, Ettenhofer said, although the use of chains is very much desired.

"The most important factor in the attempt to lower traffic accidents, however, is the lowering of driving speeds," the police chief said.

MEETS COUSIN IN SICILY WAR

Pvt. Ed Erickson Tells Of Visit With Kin From Ishpeming

BY PVT. EDMUND ERICKSON

Somewhere in Italy — Hello, again, folks. Quite a silence since I last wrote you from Sicily but have moved again as you see by the date line.

Must tell you of one incident we ran across on taking over a building which we were planning on occupying.

The second day our work detail went to clean in the building they found two Italian soldiers vigorously digging out a covered up cistern. Upon questioning, this seemingly meaningless activity on their part, this is the story they gave:

One of the soldiers and a German soldier were doing a walking guard in that area in the days before Italy found out it was on the wrong side of the fence. Each guard would start at opposite ends and walk toward a center point and then on meeting, turn about face and return. Seems that on meeting and speaking to each other on one of these tours, they got into an argument. It got quite heated for awhile and then cooled and they turned away from each other to resume their guard patrol. However, the Italian soldier got to thinking and immediately turned around and fired two shots into the Germans back. The German had a nice pair of boots and so the Italian started to take them off the dead Jerry. When activity near the post got to the point where the body was hot on his hands he hurriedly threw it into this cistern. After considerable elapse of time and change of Axis relationship, he got to talking to one of his buddies who suggested that although the body was in the cistern and would take a lot of digging to extricate it, still it was worth the effort to retrieve the other boot off the dead Germa nand so they set to work. Last we heard they were still quite some way from their prize but going strong. For other reasons the building was condemned and so we didn't move in.

Meets Ishpeming Cousin

Going back for a bit to our invasion of Sicily may I say that Pvt. Emil DeRouin is held by his buddies as a pretty good mine puller. A ticklish job unless you know how and they say he really does. Tony Velencic has merited a Technician Grade 5 rating by this Company. They're both well and happy and send greetings to the folks back home.

Not many fellows have such luck but I've had the fortune of meeting up with my cousin from Ishpeming who is in an anti-aircraft outfit in the area where we last bivouaced more or less permanently. Went to town together several times, had our pictures taken together and swapped the typical experience stories. Both agreed Africa is plainly No Good, Sicily just a little better and were hoping at the time (knowing we were both due to go to Italy soon) that the mainland would prove much better. It has, in what we've seen so far, but haven't had the time to go in on pass and see what the towns have to offer a soldier. From latest reports of fellows who have been in there are some interesting things in this land of Italy.

One great improvement is the soil. Potatoes, corn, greens and many kinds of nut meats are abundant. Picking an ear of field corn and stripping back the husk I found the well known corn bore poking its nose into some very large kernels. Haven't picked any others — must leave them for the farmer, but hope there aren't many such corn eaters as was in that one.

Cleaner in Italy

They seem to mix their crops here and one can usually find a row or so of potatoes in a corn field or turn about or probably grow potatoes and parsnips all in one patch.

People and living conditions in Italy are quite similar to Sicily although they're a little cleaner and better dressed here. The improvement in clothing is that it's not as tattered and torn and they most all have shoes. In Sicily, it was different. We used to be over-run by civilians whenever we changed bivouac areas looking for old and discarded shoes. But of course we never have any, our equipment still being in pretty good shape. What the civilians would call shoes in Sicily however, would have been thrown in the trash pile about six months before they got that bad in the States.

A decided improvement is shown in the native himself, and I think we'll enjoy this country as we do most any place we go, although we may not like it.

Four Removed From Delinquents' List

The Delta county draft board yesterday announced that four registrants previously announced as delinquents have notified the local board of their present whereabouts and have been removed from the list of delinquents.

They are Ingolf Ingebrigtsen, Anton Stambulich, Carl Arvid Anderson and Gordon LeBoutilier. They were classified as delinquents after letters addressed to them at their last known addresses were returned unclaimed, but all reported to the local board when they learned the draft board had been unable to locate them.

Law Enforcement Conference To Be Held In Marquette

It was announced yesterday by M. Wilson McFarlin, special agent in charge, Federal Bureau of Investigation, Grand Rapids, that the FBI Law Enforcement Conference for the fourth quarter, 1943 will be held at the City Auditorium, City Hall Building, Marquette, on Dec. 4.

The FBI Quarterly Police Conferences inaugurated in the fall of 1939 as an adjunct to the FBI Law Enforcement Officers Mobilization Plan for National Defense, have proved to be one of the greatest defense instruments in America's internal security armament.

The conferences, devised to further the original mobilization plan, have for their purpose the execution of the President's Directive of September 6, 1939, which vested the FBI with the duty of coordinating all information concerning internal security matters such as enemy espionage and sabotage. That same Directive requested all regularly constituted law enforcement agencies throughout the country to cooperate with the FBI in National Defense matters.

At this conference latent fingerprints will be discussed. The scientific method of searching for latent fingerprints as well as the proper way of dusting, lifting and photographing latent prints will be demonstrated during this lecture.

A discussion on report writing for police will also be on the program.

AGED MAN HIT BY CAR, KILLED

Floyd House, 67, Of McMillan, Victim Of Auto Accident

Floyd House, 67, of McMillan, was killed Thursday night when he was struck by a car driven by Joseph Gregoire, 612 South 19th street, Escanaba, on highway US-2 and 41, 200 feet north of the entrance to Pioneer Trail Park. The accident occurred on very slippery pavement about 6:30 o'clock. Mr. House sustained fractures of both legs, chest and head injuries which caused his death at 10:45 p. m. at St. Francis hospital. This is the tenth traffic fatality in this county this year.

Mr. House and his son, Pvt. William House, were enroute to Escanaba where Pvt. House was scheduled to board a train for Richmond, Va., Army Air Base to return to camp following a furlough. They stopped to assist another motorist whose car had gone off the slippery pavement into a ditch.

As Mr. House reached the center of the pavement, the Gregoire car approached. Neither the pedestrian nor Gregoire's automobile was able to avoid the accident because of the road conditions, eye witnesses reported. The front of Gregoire's car knocked Mr. House to the pavement, causing injuries which resulted in his death several hours later.

Other Cars Ditched

In less than a half hour six other cars swerved off the slippery incline and several minor accidents occurred. Motorists reported that the incline at that point was the only slippery stretch of pavement between Escanaba and Gladstone.

Riding with Gregoire at the time of the accident were two Coast Guardsmen whom Gregoire had picked up shortly before the accident. They reported that Gregoire was traveling only 15 miles per hour at the time of the accident.

Mr. House was born in Wheeler, Mich., in 1879. He had been janitor of the McMillan high school for the past 20 years.

Surviving are his wife, one daughter, Mrs. John McLairen, of McMillan; two sons, Pvt. William House, Richmond, Va., Army Air Base; and Cpl. Floyd House, of Camp Livingstone, La.; and one grandchild.

The body was removed to the Allo funeral home and prepared for burial. Arrangements for funeral services are incomplete, pending the arrival of Cpl. Floyd House from Camp Livingstone. Pvt. William House was granted an extension of his furlough by the commanding officer at the Richmond, Va., Army Air Base.

The Roving Reporter

By ERNIE PYLE

WASHINGTON—When I came east from New Mexico, I thought it might be nice to ride the train for a change, since I'd traveled only by air and water for the past six years.

Pyle

When I went to the depot I found that getting on a train these days is about as hard as getting on a plane. They had orders not to make any reservations out of Albuquerque for two months. But the agent did have one lone space which he'd been hoarding—it was for a bedroom on the Santa Fe Chief. I decided to take it.

ERNIE PYLE OFF FOR WAR AGAIN

After a two-month visit in the States, Ernie Pyle is off for the Mediterranean theater of war again.

The last of the articles he wrote while in this country appears on page 6. His daily column will be resumed as soon as he has arrived overseas and had a chance to look around.

In the first place I'd never had anything so flossy on a train as a bedroom. That's really getting classy, and I enjoy a shot of class once in a while to break the monotony. Further, I thought a private bedroom would be just the thing for me to do some writing during the 27-hour journey to Chicago.

The train was fine and the bedroom was fine. Nothing was the railroad's fault. But the next time I take a trip I'm going to ride the rods. I'm apparently just not the train-bedroom type. For at night I couldn't sleep because of the air-conditioning, and in the daytime I got so lonesome, all shut in there my myself, that I sat in the club car all the time. On my next splurge of railroad class I guess I'd better hire a whole car and ask a few friends to come alo ng.

• • •

I had one experience on the train I hadn't counted on. I got a haircut. Yep, right on the train, while crossing Illinois at 70 miles an hour. The Chief has practically everything.

The barber was a slight grayish man of upper middle age. He never said a word during the whole operation. And then just as he finished he said:

"You've just had the distinction, slight as it is, of getting my last haircut in 55 years of barbering!"

Now that is a distinction, so I asked for the details. It seems he was retiring from the railroad forever when we hit Chicago a few minutes later. He was going to give away all his barber tools, keeping only one razor, a hone and a strop for himself.

The barber's name is William F. Obermeyer, and his home is at 1049 Meadowbrook, Los Angeles. He is 69 and therefore has been barbering since he was 14. He has spent 41 of those 55 years on the railroad, 30 of them with the Santa Fe.

He didn't seem excited about the impending end of such a long career, but I guess he was, for several other passengers said he told them about it too.

• • •

Do you remember last fall in Sicily when I was writing about the Third Division's engineers repairing the Point Calava demolition, and how two soldiers especially worked on and on with more fervor and sincerity than anybody need expect of them?

Well, now comes a letter from a man in Hillsboro, Ore., wanting to know how he could get in touch with them so he could send them $100 apiece, just out of gratitude.

His letter says, "Such men are not common and I want to show them that I appreciate such actions and perseverance."

I'm not giving the man's name, because I haven't time to write and find out whether he would object to being named. But the two boys were Corp. Gordon Uttach, Merrill, Wis., and Corp. Alvin Tolliver, Alamosa, Colo. I hope the samaritan finds them, and that they enjoy their $100.

• • •

While I was on vacation, some of the papers reprinted old columns starting back as far as eight years ago. In one month those reprint columns roamed all the way from Alaska to Argentina. Each one carried an editor's note above it, and told what year the column was writen in.

Yet we've had dozens of remarks indicating that readers hadn't read the editor's notes at all, and thought I was literally jumping from Dutch Harbor to Pearl Harbor to French Guiani overnight. There was even one advertising-agency man in New York who, after reading the reprint of a 1938 Guatemala column, called up Washington and wanted to know how soon I'd be back from Central America.

• • •

That's all for now. There will be a pause in the columns while I get to where I'm going. Take care of yourselves here in America, and thanks for being so nice to me during my two-month respite from war.

Christian Science Churches

"Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, November 28.

The Golden Text (Psalms 56: 1,3) is: "Be merciful unto me, O God: for man would swallow me up: he fighting daily oppresseth me . . . what time I am afraid, I will trust in thee."

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Psalms 34:7): "The angel of the Lord encampath round about them that fear him, and delivereth them."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scraptures," by Mary Baker Eddy," include the following (p. 299): "Angels are God's representatives. These upward-soaring beings never lead towards self, sin, or materiality, but guide to the divine Principle of all good, whither every real individuality, image, or likeness of God, gathers."

In a candlelight service at six o'clock, Thanksgiving Day, at the Central Methodist church, Miss Marian Verle Olsen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Olsen, of 126 West D street, Iron Mountain, became the bride of Dr. Gilbert W. Bensen of Escanaba, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Benson of Whiting, Indiana.

The vows were spoken before Rev. Karl J. Hammar in the presence of immediate members of the two families and a small group of close friends.

Mrs. Carlson, organist, played a short prelude of bridal music, and she also played the traditional bridal marches, "Bridal Chorus" from Wagner's "Lohengrin" and Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

Miss Dorothy Olsen was her sitser's maid of honor and only attendant, and John C. Bennett served as Dr. Benson's best man.

The bride wore a dressmaker suit of light blue gabardine with a fuchsia hat and accessories and her flowers were a fuschia orchid shoulder corsage. Her maid of honor wore a dressmaker suit of dusty rose gabardine. Her accessaries were of black and gardenias formed her shoulder bouquet.

The mother of the bride was dressed in cocoa brown wool, with which she wore brown accessories and a corsage of talisman roses, and Mrs. Benson, the bridegroom's mother, wore rust crepe with matching accessories and a harmonizing corsage of roses.

A reception for twenty-five guests was held following the ceremony at the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. James J. LaVasser. The beautifully appointed table with its white cloth and crystal candelabra, holding white tapers, was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake, the top ornament of which was a miniature bridal couple.

On Being A Real Person

By Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick

A Dependable Man Is Human Nature's Noblest Exhibit

No virtue is more universally accepted as a test of good character than trustworthiness. Obviously, however, this virtue is more than "moral" in an ordinary sense of that term. Dependability is possible only in so far as the whole personality achieves a staunch unity that can be counted on. "Good old Watson!" said Sherlock Holmes to his friend. "You are the one fixed point in a changing age." A consistent character, so unified that the quality of its responses is predictable, is commonly interpreted in moral terms, but the psychological processes involved are basic and profound. A man of integrity must first of all be well integrated.

Unreliability is the first fruit of all forms of dissociated personality. When the dissociation is caused by alcohol or opiates, we have the erratic behavior of the drunkard or the drug addict. When it is caused by infantilism, we have the eccentric whims and caprices of chilishness. When it reaches the state of stark insanity, it ranges over a wide and terrible field of unpredictable reactions. It may even produce personalities so split into two or more "persons" of contrasting quality that one of them does not remember the actions of the other.

As for the rest of us, we frequently act "out of character." The general pattern of our lives may involve honesty, truthfulness, and similar qualities—but not always. Some of our moods, impulses, and desires are nomads, incorrigibly uncivilized by our main design for living. In so far as we are thus disintegrated, we are not dependable.

This is evident even with regard to a virtue like courtesy. Although politeness is supported by some of the strongest motives that play on human life, how common is the person whose courtesy is unreliable! Polite today, morose and uncivil tomorrow; obliging and well-bred in business, crabbed, churlish, and sulky at home; affable with one's so-called "equals," gruff and snobbish with one's servants; a good sportsman on the golf links, an ill-natured jostler in the subway; kindly at church, snarling and peevish in the office; friendly with one's own kind, splenetic and even brutal toward Jews, egroes, Roman Catholics, Protestants, religious liberals.

In one sense, human nature is happily unpredictable. So one can foresee what may be forthcoming from most unlikely people. When Thomas Edison was seven years old his school teacher gave him up as a hopeless case. He heard her tell the inspector that he was "addled," and that it was useless for him longer to attend school.

The incalculable possibilities of such a boy are among the chief assests of human nature. Even when character has been corrupted, transformations can occur, opening up futures that cannot be forecast, and this unforseeable element is one of the glories of personal life.

Moreover, even in those whom we count most dependable there is happily a wide range of unpredictability. We cannot tell what new and surprising qualities may yet appear in them. They may be full of unexpected quirks and humors, like a diamond with many facets that surprise and delight us. Indeed, paradoxical though it is, this unpredictability may be one aspect of trustworthiness.

James M. Barrie describes his official conscious self as hard-headed, practical, and canny; but his other self, whom he calls "M'Connochie," is an impulsive, fantastic, romantic fellow who, when he wishes, takes charge of Barrie and controls his destiny—"M'Connachie is the one who writes the plays." This is not disintegration, but richness and variety of life. In this sense one can share Logan Pearsall Smith's exclamation, "What a bore it is, waking up in the morning always the same person!"

Without contradicting such facts, however, it still is true that predictable character is one of the highest ethical goods. One can tell in advance with what manner of behavior a man with such character will act. He has developed a dependable style. Such men are the strength of their friends and the noblest exhibit that human nature gives of itself.

LaBonte-Gulseth Wedding in Home Church of Bride

Miss Guinevere Mary LaBonte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon LaBonte, Jr., of Spalding, became the bride of Melvin Gulseth, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Olson, of Green Valley, at a ceremony which took place Saturday morning, November 20, at eight o'clock at St. Francis Xavier church in Spalding.

The altars of the church at which the service was solemnized byRev. Fr. Frank A. Seifert, were decorated with bouquets of pink and white pompons.

The traditional bridal marches were played by the church organist and the wedding mass was sung by the choir.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Alida M. LaBonte, and the bride's brother, Napoleon LaBonte, served as best man.

Bride in White Satin

The bride, who was escorted to the sanctuary gate by her father, who gave her in marriage, wore a gown of white satin with velvet flower design, the yoke of the fitted bodice, outlined with pearls, the long sleeves, puffed at the shoulder line, and the very full skirt forming a long train. Her satin-edged finger-tip veil was gathered to a halo of tulle. She carried a bouquet of red roses and white pompons, showered with white satin ribbons, and for the service she used a crystal rosary, the gift of the bridegroom.

The maid of honor wore ice blue satin and georgette, and a Juliet cap and shoulder veil to mach and she carried gold pompons.

The bride's mother wore a suit of brown wool crepe with brown accessories and a shoulderette of gold pompons and the bridegroom's mother wore black crepe with black accessories and a corsage of rose pompons.

A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, and a wedding dinner for twenty-five guests was served at 5:30 o'clock at Perry's Day Nite club. The color theme of the decorations was pink and white, with bouquets of pompons arranged with the tiered wedding cake.

The couple left on a wedding trip, the bride's traveling costume a gray wool gabardine suit with matching accessories. They will make their home in Manitowoc. The bride is employed there by the Aluminum Good Manufacturing company and Mrs. Gulseth is with the Manitowoc Shipbuilding company.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mrs. E. E. Olson of Green Valley, Miss Florence Gulseth of Milwaukee, and Mrs. J. F. Wagner and daughter, Violet and Barbara, of Hardwood.

CITY CLOSES SLIP BRIDGES

Unsafe Structure Repair Will Begin Monday Morning

Footbridges over the slips of the Manistique River will be closed beginning Monday morning, November 29, for the purpose of repairing and remodeling part of the unsafe structures, City Manager Charles Manson announced yesterday.

City crews will tear out the bridge over the number one slip, on the east side, and will rebuild the piers, place new stringers, and reconstruct the bridge in general, he said. Although the exact length of time the bridges will be closed for repairs is not known, Mr. Manson said that work will be rushed. As a result of the closing, it will be necessary for many persons, regularly accustomed to using the short cut across the slips, to walk more than an additional half mile when crossing from one side of the city to the other. Only alternative route is the traffic bridge on US-2.

The city now is able to procure materials for reconstruction after negotiating for more than two months with priority ratings and sources of supply. Material available at this time is adequate for only the actual rebuilding of the bridge on the first slip. This structure has long been unsafe, Manson said, having tilted over to a dangerous angle.

As soon as materials can be had, it was pointed out, additional work will be done. This project includes the building of walkways between the bridges. During most of the year the pathway between the bridges is wet and muddy. By constructing board walks the short cut would be accessible to many people who hesitate to use it in its present condition, Manson said.

Signs will be posted today on both sides of the slip announcing the closing of the bridges for repairs.

Servicemen Can Get Ration Points On Furlough, Says OPA

Servicemen and women who fail to receive a signed form from their post enabling them to secure ration points while on furlough, may still procure the points through an emergency provision available at any War Price and Rationing board, the local board reports here.

Servicemen usually apply to their commanding officer before leaving on furlough for "furlough ration points." However, if they fail to do this, they may apply in person to their nearest War Price and Ration board where emergency points will be supplied, it was said.

There have been a number of instances where servicemen came home on furlough without ration points. Because they were not aware of the emergency provision, enabling them to get points, they needlessly used the points rationed to the household they were visiting.

Servicemen Get Xmas Gifts From War Service Club

The War Service club reported yesterday that already some of the boys in the service on foreign duty have received the gift boxes and greeting cards mailed to them by the club.

Several letters have been received from boys in foreign duty expressing their appreciation for the gifts mailed to them in October. Others have written to relatives and asked them to transmit their grattitude to the War Service club.

Work of the club in regard to Christmas activities for the benefit of Schoolcraft county servicemen and women will be completed this week with the mailing of an additional 25 gift boxes and 120 greeting cards to servicemen who are still in this country.

The War Service club sponsored a benefit party last October 6, the proceeds of which were designated for gifts and cards for servicemen. It was one of the most successful parties of that type ever held in this city, making it possible to send boxes and cards to many of the servicemen. At that time, drawings took place from a list of submitted names, and the winners were sent gift boxes. A total of 53 gift boxes have been sent out. The remainder of the names, 250 of them, were sent cards.

Irish Bid For National Title; Army-Navy Battle To Be Close One

ONLY SAILORS CAN SEE GAME

Great Lakes Recruits Think Notre Dame Is In For Defeat

BY DAVE HOFF

Great Lakes, Ill., Nov. 26. (AP)—An unquestioned claim to the national championship and its first undefeated, untied season since 1930 would be Notre Dame's tomorrow with a victory over Great Lakes, and few doubt the Irish chances — except thousands of sailor recruits at this naval training station.

Out here along the north lake front, where Uncle Sam is training a great bulk of the boys who operate his men o'war, the kids like Lt. Paul (Tony) Hinkle's football team and think it has a good, ripe opportunity to block Notre Dame's bid for its 10th and final triumph of a great year.

Unfortunately only a fraction of the trainees will be able to jam into the Ross Field stadium, with ts temporary bleachers and its corps of WAVES cheerleaders. But the 22,000 lucky ones will be better off than any civilian in these parts, because it's an all-navy show.

May Cause Trouble

A Notre Dame alumnus' only chance of breaking past the sergeant of the guard would be by flashing the added identification of that navy blue uniform.

Like the Iowa Seahawks, who last week held the Irish to a 14-13 win, Great Lakes has a big, mature team which might cause Notre Dame a lot of trouble, but the Irish have dabbled in trouble all season and made a great sport of it. Adversity seems to take a licking when Johnny Lujack, Jim Mello, Julie Rykovich, Creighton Miller and associates dig in their cleats.

Oddly enough Notre Dame, which will have played to some 503,000 spectators in 10 games, gets nothing financially from this contest, which originally was scheduled for Chicago's Comiskey Park as the fifth Irish "home" affair.

The navy mandate that its team could not play on a neutral field ruled out the White Sox establishment and Notre Dame officials permitted the game to be moved here rather than to South Bend. Since there are no gate receipts, there is no kitty share for Notre Dame.

The 34-year-old Chicago White Sox shortstop, father of two pre-Pearl Harbor children, was accompanied to Chicago by his wife, the paper said.

For The MAN

The Sports Parade

By Ken Gunderman

Baseball is America's national sport, and yet a surprisingly large number of states in this country are not represented in organized baseball. Some of the states have had no teams in organized leagues for several years, indicating that the war cannot be blamed entirely for this situation.

It is significant that baseball interest, as reflected by the number of teams in organized baseball, is concentrated east of the Mississippi river and including the tier of states boundering on the western shoreline of the Mississippi, plus the states of Texas, California and Idaho. Montana, Wyoming, Navada and Vermont had no teams in organized baseball even before 1943, when most of the minor leagues suspended.

This is a problem that is being given careful consideration now by leaders of organized baseball. The first objective in the postwar period, of course, will be the restoration of the 30-odd leagues that have been suspended because of wartime manpower shortage. In this regard proper thought is being given to the shifting of populations as a result of new industries.

Then there is the problem of spreading interest in baseball among the nation's youth and the establishment of the sport in high schools and colleges. An energetic program is being planned along these lines for the post-war period.

The Detroit Tigers are reported to have hit the jackpot when they secured Rufe Gentry from the Buffalo Bisons for $10,000 at the close of the past season. The $10,000 deal is the result of the Tigers' working agreement with the Bisons. Actually Gentry probably would have brought at least $40,000 on the open market, according to those in the know. Gentry is a right handed pitcher, 4-F in the draft, with 20 victory record the past season with a second division club. His fast ball is supposed to be really something pretty hot and his friends think he is a cinch to win 20 games for the Tigers next season.

Michigan and Purdue finished the football season tied for the Big Ten conference title, but the Wolverines topped the Boilermakers on both offense and defense. Purdue, in fact, finished third in offensive ranking and fourth in defensive ranking, with Northwestern placed second offensively and third defensively. Second place in the defensive ranking went to Indiana.

The poorest offensive record in the Western Conference was that of Wisconsin, while Ohio State held the poorest defensive record during the season.

Individual scoring record goes to Tony Butkovich of Purdue who set a new conference record of 78 points, despite the fact that he played in only four conference games before he left Purdue to go into boot training in the Marine Corps. Otto Graham of Northwestern placed second with 55 points and Elroy Hirsch of Michigan third with 44. Bill Daley of Michigan scored 39 points for fourth place in individual scoring.

HUNTING DEATHS SET NEW MARK

Gary Steel Worker Dies At Soo; Saginaw Girl Shotgun Victim

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hunter fatalities from gunfire in Michigan's deer season reached the record high of 15 Friday with the death of Charles P. Kreahl, Gary, Ind., steel worker, in a Sault Ste. Marie hospital.

Kreahl was accidentally shot in the back by his hunting companion, John Germain of the Sault. The two were hunting near Fibre, 40 miles west of the Sault. Last rites were administered the wounded man Friday after an operation and blood transfusion Thursday.

Besides the 15 killed by the gunfire of fellow hunters, at least five other hunters died in automobile accidents and four others of heart attacks in the hunting areas.

Four days remain of the present season. The previous high in gunshot fatalities was 14 recorded in 1937 and again in 1940.

Sixteen-year-old Dorothy Amsden of Saginaw was accidentally shot to death Friday by a companion rabbit hunter.

Miss Amsden was struck in the face by buckshot from the gun of a 17-year-old Saginaw high school student, Andrew Kristalyn, shortly after she got out of an automobile while he was loading the gun. Physicians at a Midland first aid station said death was instantaneous.

The shooting mishop occurred a mile north of Edenville, at a spot in Midland county near the Gladwin county line. With Miss Amsden and Kristalyn in the hunting party were three other Saginaw youths, Eugene Snow, 15; Marshall Truck, 16, and George Schebler, 15.

Field officers of the conservation department reported there have been 555 arrests so far for infractions of conservation laws.

Hunting conditions in the Upper Peninsula were reported not so good because the woods are noisy from lack of snow. In the lower peninsula conditions were fair, with light rain and very little snow.

SCHOOLS SLOW ON SPORT POLL

Resumption Of Athletic Tournaments Big Issue At Lansing Session

Lansing, Nov. 26 (AP)—Julian W. Smith, state high school athletics director, reported today that only a small percentage of schools polled in a questionnaire survey have replied concerning their desires for resumption of athletic tournaments next year.

The subject will be the principal issue before the association's representative association meeting here December 1 and 2, and results of the poll will go far toward determining whether basketball and other tournaments, cancelled last year in favor of area meets, would be resumed. Replies will not be tabulated until the eve of the meeting, he said.

Smith said the council also would be asked to relax eligibility rules to allow young men whose high school education was interrupted by induction into the armed forces to resume athletic competition promptly if they receive a discharge and return to school.

Existing rules, he said, provide no leeway to meet this situation, and require a full semester's study in at least three subjects before the student may compete in athletics.

CADE ITNJURIES CURED QUICKLY

Ailing Middies Also All Back On Roster For 44th Classic

BY HAROLD CLAASSEN

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 26 (AP)—Although the annual Army-Navy football game is only 24 hours away, the biggest mystery today was the drug which miraculously cured a quartet of ailing midshipmen and removed a carload of minor injuries from the Cadet roster.

With the forty-fourth meeting of the service teams scheduled for tomorrow in the semi-seclusion of mountain-guarded Michie stadium, there wasn't a first class casualty on either team except for Robert Pearce, second string Army guard who will be unable to play because of an infected leg.

No Thermometer

Navy's pneumonia-threatened squad arrived before lunch today minus a fever thermometer. They encamped nearby Bear Mountain and left their hilltop long enough for a brief testing of the Michie stadium field.

Among the most healthy appearing were Ben Chase, Jack Martin, George Brown and Don Whitmire. All have been described as suffering from various ailments during the week.

Likewise, Ed Murphy. He's the guard with the talented toe in the Army setup and does the kicking off and extra point kicking for the Cadets. He received a blow on the head in last Saturday's Brown encounter and didn't report for practices earlier in the week.

Tomorrow's game, the first Army-Navy game here in 51 years, will be played before a restricted crowd of 16,000 although the stadium is arranged to hold 28,000 comfortably.

Everyone of the spectators will be a bona fide resident of an area ten miles in circumference from the exact center of the football playing field, a restriction applied by the war department in permitting the game to be played.

Visitors Favorites

The game easily could have filled the 102,000 seats in Philadelphia stadium, where it was originally scheduled until war interfered, especially since the two clubs come up to their annual game with one defeat apiece. Notre Dame first trounced Navy, 33 to 6, then followed a week later by measuring Army, 26 to 0.

The visiting Midshipmen, who will get vocal support from one-half of the military academy's student body, are the favorites, however, because they trimmed Pennsylvania while the Quakers tied the Cadets, 13 to 13.

Even the meager throng of 16,000 may be cut down if the weather man's prediction of snow comes true. Colder weather will accompany the flakes, he promises.

Both clubs will spend the night at Bear Mountain but at different establishments.

The evening's vacation brought joy to the Cadet footballers. Under the academy's precise plans, they are allowed exactely seven hours and 50 minutes in bed each night. Lt. Col., Earl Blaik, head coach of the Cadet forces, has promised them a full 12-hour slumber tonight.

This is the second game played under the no-traveling restrictions pressed into the contest, Navy winning by a 14 to 0 count at Annapolis, Md., last fall. At least one player in that contest, Second Lieut. Willard B. Wilson already has made the supreme sacrifice since then.

Hold Your Hat, Here We Go Again

New Orleans (AP)—It took nine weeks of hypodermic shots to prepare a major at the army bomber base for a prospective assignment overseas.

They were for typhoid, typhus, tetanus, cholera, yellow fever, etc., not to mention re-vaccination for smallpox.

The immediate effects wore off. The major felt fit, robust, hearty—and patriotic. So he dropped in at the blood bank and gave generously of his blood.

Thereupon the army medicos, having heard of it, ordered him to take the whole nine weeks of shots over again.

Deer Of Tennessee Chewing Tobacco

Nashville, Tenn. (AP)—Deer in the mountains of east Tennessee have taken to chewing tobacco.

In a letter to R. G. Turner, director of game and fish, Mrs. Mary Raines, of Wolf Creek, said: "The deer are so bad they have already chewed up my tobacco crop and started on the corn and I want you to come up here and do something about this."

No Bits, No Nips

After the Institute of Sao Paulo taught Brazilians how to care for the wounds, snake bite mortality rates in Brazil dropped from 90 per cent to three per cent.

HIS FIRST SHOT—New at this archery business, Albert Spence, Grand Rapids, bagged the biggest buck, a 250 pounder, killed thus far in the bow and arrow deer hunting season with his first shot. The arrow points to the spot just four inches above the heart where he hit the animal. Spence, who took up archery just three months ago, uses an osage bow with a pulling power of 45 pounds.

CANOL CREATES HOT DISPUTE

Oil Rights Are Owned By Imperial, Controlled By Standard

B YPETER EDSON

Escanaba Daily Press Washington Correspondent

By a stroke of the wildest kind of prospector's luck, one of the War Department's worst scandals—the $134 million Canol oil development project in Northwest Territory, Canada—may be converted into a post-war bonanza. The outcome of this strange turn of events, which would make heroes out of public figures who might otherwise be courtmartialed, may be known soon, following disclosures on (1) the real extent of the Norman Wells oil fields, just under the Arctic Circle, east of the Alaska-Canada boundary in the vicinity of Great Bear Lake; and (2) the conclusion of new agreements between the U. S. and Canadian governments, covering post-war disposal of the oil and the War Department's investment in developing the field, pipelines, refinery and access roads, nearly all of which are on Canadian territory and blanket or compete with Alaskan resources.

Should the Norman Wells field turn out to be one of the biggest pools on the North American continent, as has been predicted by some oil interests, it will relieve the War Department from one of its most embarrassing scandals.

In three days of public hearings before the Senate Truman Committee investigating the war effort, following several months of secret investigations, the whole fantastic story of the Canol project has been disclosed in sorry detail.

Patterson Protests

Under Secretary of War Robert Patterson belligerently defends the Army's handling of the project as necessary to national defense and as considered essential by the joint chiefs of staff, who have ordered the work completed, regardless of cost. From an economic point of view, however, Canol — deriving its name from a telescoping of Canadian Oil—has now been shown to be almost indefensible.

Up to Nov. 1, over $89 million had already been spent, but the end is not yet in sight. Before it is completed, next year, it is estimated that the total costs will be $134 million—for waterways, prospecting, moving a refinery from Texas to Whitehorse, a four-inch pipeline from Norman Wells, and for storage and distribution lines.

For this investment, the Army will eventually get, out of a developed crude production of 3000 barrels a day at this time, a high-octane gasoline production of only 479 barrels a day, which is nothing. The pipeline won't be completed till next February, the refinery till spring. If everything goes well ,there may be usable products by July 1. Until then, and even afterward, the bulk of the petroleum products used in Alaska will have to be supplied by tanker.

The whole enterprise is a tremendous gamble with public funds. That being the case, what are the chances of getting any of the money back?

The oil rights are owned by Imperial Oil of Canada, which is 51 per cent owned by Standard Oil of New Jersey. The Army's contract with Imperial provides for the sale of the first million and a half barrels of crude at $1.25 a barrel at the well. After that, the Army will pay only 50 cents a barrel to cover cost of producing the oil, putting the remaining 75 cents in another pocket to retire the War Department's investment of $17 million in drilling and developing the producing field.

This would take about 13 years, at present rates of production, but if production were brought up to merely the present potential of the field, 20,000 barrels a day, by the building of another, bigger pipeline to Whitehorse, the time would be reduced to two years. Refined products, it is estimated, can be produced at Whitehorse at about $6 a barrel, as against $5.50 a barrel cost for delivery by tanker from the States. So, it's still a bad bargain.

The Army's contract now runs until only six months after the end of the war. For the other millions going into pipelines, refinery, and so on, the Canadian government now has first option to buy at the then appraised value. If Canada does not exercise the option, the properties may be sold privately at not less than value. So there is a long chance that most of the money may be recovered. And if the Norman Wells field turns out to be another East Texas, then the investment will be as good as the War Department's other "boner" in building the Alcan Highway itself.

SUGAR MAKING ENDS

Menominee — Sugar making activities at the Superior Sugar Refining company, Menominee, are expected to be sharply curtailed next week as the beets went through the slicing machine yesterday.

The 1943 harvest, reduced nearly 30 per cent by federal restrictions, resulted in a short run. Operations began October 7 and continued on a 24-hour basis, seven days a week. During this time, an average of 305 men were employed.

The total production is expected to be somewhat under the approximate 100,000 tons of sugar produced last year although the sugar content of the crop this year was above average.

CHICAGO EGGS

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Nov. 26 (AP)—Grains suffered wide losses today as the market was upset by news that the house ways and means committee had approved removing import duties on many grains, indications that less wheat will be needed for industrial alcohol production and prospects of ceilings on oats and barley well below present farm prices.

The market sank about a cent at the opening on an accumulation of over-the-holiday orders, made a minor attempt at a rally around mid-day, and then fell below the previous close on heavy selling following news of the house committee action. Rye declined most, but no grain showed any independent strength.

At the close wheat was down 1¼ to 2 1-8, December $1.60 5-8; rye was off 2¼ to 2 3-4, December $1.14 1-8 to $1.14¼; oats were 1¼ to 2 lower, December 76 7-8 to 76 3-4, and barley was off 1 3-8 to 2, December $1.17.

MILD REVIVAL HITS MARKETS

BY BERNARD S. O'HARA

New York, Nov. 26 (AP)—Financial markets reflected a mild revival of peace thinking today and stocks and commodities generally turned downward without being subjected to a great deal of pressure.

Shares of companies with armament connections bore the brunt of selling on the idea these particularly would encounter post-war difficulties in the way of contract cancellations and transitional costs which would temporarily hit earnings. Most issues with better prospects, though, failed to get ahead.

Prices began to soften after a slightly uneven opening and there was litle if any come-back at the close. Losses of fractions to 2 or more points were widespread although dealings were relatively slack throughout.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was off .5 of a point at 47.7. It was the largest drop in this composite since November 8. The market was far from broad, however, only 820 individual issues being traded. Of these, 521 were down, 126 up and 173 unchanged. Transfers totalled 601,150 shares compared with 706,710 Wednesday. Last year's post-Thanksgiving session was equally sluggish but prices were up a shade on balance.

Prominent on the offside were Santa Fe, Southern Railway, N. Y. Central, American Distilling, Allied Mills, Schenley, Electric Power & Light preferreds, U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, American Smelting, American Can, Dow Chemical, Allied Chemical and Philip Morris.

Oils, utilities, rubbers and coppers were somewhat resistant. Eastman Kodak advanced a point and lesser improvement was retained by Goodyear, Westinghouse and Johns-Manville.

Curb losers included Cities Service, Electric Bond & Share, Glen Alden Coal and Niagara Hudson Power. Turnover here was 150,060 shares versus 177,240 in the preceding session.

BRAZIL BONDS RALLY

New York, Nov. 26 (AP)—Strong rallies in South American bonds following disclosure of a new debt service plan by Brazil contrasteed with lower trends in other sections of today's market.

Most of the Brazil bonds moved up 1 to around 6 points, unusually on moderately light demand. One or two lost ground, reflecting disappointment of holders at the individual treatment accorded them in the plan. Other South Americans, including obligations of Chile, Argentina and Peru made moderate progress.

Brazil Government 6½s, Brazil Railway 7s, Chile 6s, Columbia 6s, Pernambuco 7s, Peru first 6s, Porto Alegre 7½s and 8s, Rio Grande Do Sul 6s and 7s, Sao Paulo City 6½s and 8s, Sao Paulo State 7s and 8s and Uruguay adjustment 4 1-8s were among the active issues. Sao Paulo State 7s of 1940 and Brazil Government 8s were lower.

Corporate bonds under water at the close for losses of fractions to more than a point included Lehigh Valley 4s, Maine Central 4s, Missouri Pacific 4½s and 5s, Missouri-Kansas-Texas 4½s and 5s, New York Central 3¼s, New Haven 6s, Pacific Telephone 3¼s, Rock Island 4½s and St. Paul 5s.

Moderately resistant were Armour 4s, Boston & Maine 5s, Bush Terminal 5s, Burlington 4½s, Chicago Union Station 3 3-4s and Columbia Gas 5s. U. S. governments were quiet but steady.

Sales of $8,030,800, face value, compared with $6,488,200 on Wednesday.

PRISON INMATES TO BE TRAINED

Selected Groups Take Vocational Work At Cassidy Lake Camp

Lansing, Nov. 26 (AP)—Garret Heyns, state corrections director, said today that within a week vocational training for a "carefully selected" group of prison inmates would be underway at the former Cassidy Lake NYA camp.

He said the camp's maximum population of 150 inmates would not be reached for at least six months. A small work crew of inmates and an instructor already are at the camp inventorying equipment and preparing for the project.

Heyns, hailing the acquisition as a step toward segregating youthful and minor offenders from hardened criminals, said the group will include largely first termers, youths with short sentences for minor crimes, and men who have proven behind bars that they are fit for greater freedom.

The camp, situated in the Waterloo recreational area between Jackson and Ann Arbor, was secured for the corrections department with the help of Governor Kelly last week after the National Youth Administration had closed it. The camp contains $250,000 worth of vocation training equipment.

Heyns estimated the camp might cost the state $750,000 a year to operate, and that $50,000 would be needed to get the site in shape and operate it for the rest of the fiscal year. Pending provision of the additional funds, personnel from the state prison of Southern Michigan is being used now to get the camp started.

MARINE GRIT CREDITED IN TARAWA COUP

"I think a sniper got him but it might have been machinegun fire. He was hit squarely between the eyes."

Back from the invasion scene, approximately 2,400 miles to the southwest, both Colonel Carlson and Colonel Roosevelt said perfect cooperation of all elements made the capture of Tarawa and Makin possible. While army and navy planes provided cover and naval guns engaged in shelling, the Marines landed at Tarawa and the infantry at Makin.

"I was on the beach only 15 seconds after our last bomb dropped," said Colonel Roosevelt, navy cross winner for the August, 1942, raid on Makin.

"We followed the bombs in by only 100 yards. You can't expect to clean out every enemy position by aerial bombing and navy gunfire but you've no idea how it helps the morale of the assault troops to see those bombs dropping ahead."

Colonel Carlson and Colonel Roosevelt joined in praising the "determination, tenacity and courage" of all the soldiers and Marines for the quick capture of Tarawa and Makin.

With the ground action in the Gilberts now reduced to mopping up, the Americans prepared to ward off enemy air blows with a naval spokesman asserting the enemy airforce in the sector already showed signs of lacking the "will to fight."

Nine more Japanese ships, including a medium plane transport, have been sunk by American submarines, the navy reported in Washington, This boosted to 505 the number of ships so destroyed, probably sunk or damaged by undersea craft.

Later information, based on air reconnaissance, indicated the Nipponese suffered more heavily than at first reported in their second naval disaster in the northern Solomons Sea. Spencer Davis, AP war correspondent, reported from the advance headquarters of Adm. William F. Halsey that every ship in the enemy flotilla was sunk or damaged.

There were six vessels in the squadron which American warships met and defeated early Thursday.

Formosa Battered By Allied Planes, Tokyo Radio Says

New York, Nov. 26 (AP)—The Tokyo radio asserted today that Allied planes lashing out in a Thanksgiving Day raid had bombed Formosa off China's east coast, only 650 miles south of the Japanese mainland.

There was no Allied confirmation of the raid, during which, by Japanese account, three attacking planes were downed by Nippon's naval fighters.

The bombers hit the port city of Shinchiku on the northwest coast of Formosa, 90 miles off China and some 200 miles north of Philippines, Tokyo said.

If the Japanese report is true, it appeared possible that big Liberators of Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennaults U. S. 14th Air Force had made the raid, striking from bases in southeastern China.

Such an attack would be the first by American planes upon Formosa since the United States declared war upon Japan.

China has an area of 4,000,000 square miles.

The main agricultural products of Madagascar are coffee and rice.

Liquor Is Stolen At Detroit Store

Detroit, Nov. 26 (AP)—Police held one man tonight in their investigation of the theft of an undetermined amount of liquor from a state store early this morning by four men who fled after exchanging shots with officers.

Residents of the neighborhood had reported seeing the four men carry a number of cases from the store to a waiting automobile. When Sergeants John Hagermoser and George Hyne arrived, the men fled despite seven shots fired by the officers, and one of the fugitives leaned from the car to fire two shots at Hagermoser. Both shots were wild.

The man held on a charge of breaking and entering is Leon Jurczyszny. Detectives said a piece of automobile molding found in an alley near the liquor store exactly fitted a broken place on his automobile.

Pastor At Pontiac Pickets OPA After Cut In Gas Rations

Pontiac, Mich., Nov. 26 (AP)—Protesting gasoline allowances for their pastor, 50 members of the congregation of the Christian Temple picketed Office of Price Administration headquarters here today.

The Rev. Leland L. Marion, who was among the pickets, said he felt he had been unfairly dealt with by A. J. Diebel, OPA director of Oakland county, in being refused renewal of his "C" gasoline allowance. He had been granted "B" rations.

After a time, the pickets departed. They had demanded Diebel's dismissal and distributed circulars quoting the Rev. Marion as expressing "shock and surprise" at the OPA official's attitude.

American Fleet's Strength Doubled

Washington, Nov. 26. (AP)—Secretary of the Navy Knox reported today that the numerical strength of the American fleet has been doubled in the last 11 months and that new craft include more than 40 aircraft carriers.

With the new construction, his report said that 817 combatant vessels now make up the fleets on all oceans.

Within the next two weeks, Knox said, new construction also will make good the 21 vessels lost this year, bringing the total fighting fleet to 838 ships of all types from destroyer escorts to big battleships.

WAR HITS COLOMBIA

Bogota, Colombia, Nov. 26 (AP)—The sinking of a Colombian schooner by a German submarine was announced officially tonight.

Nothing Is Too Much For AWVS

New Orleans (AP)—The tailoring department of the American Women's Volunteer Services here has mended everything from a captured Japanese judo suit to a stage curtain containing 150 yards of material. So the ladies are not surprised at servicemen's suggestions.

However, they admit there were a few raised eyebrows when a brawny sailor marched in recently with a pair of shorts to be mended and remarked that an embroidered monogram would look mighty nice.

He got it.

550 MANAGER CITIES IN U. S.

Success Of Government In Escanaba Is Cited

Ishpeming — The city charter commission released a statement today giving some of the historical background of the council manager form of government, provided for in the proposed new charter for Ishpeming, which will be voted upon in a special election Tuesday, December 7.

The statement follows:

Michigan Leads

The charter commission decided upon the council manager form of government for Ishpeming only after a careful study of the various types of city governments. This form of government is not new. It was first used in 1908 and has since been adopted by more than 550 cities. Over 100 have adopted it during the last five years. Each year more cities are changing to this form of government.

Michigan leads all the states with 53 cities under this form of government. Virginia is next with 46, then followed by Texas with 43, Maine with 42 and Florida and California close behind.

A study of the tax situation in the cities with the manager form of government, as compared with other types, seems to indcate clearly that there has been a general reduction of tax rates over a period of years. Not only has the tax rate been decreased, but there has been a tremendous increase in benefits to the public.

Escanaba's Record Cited

Escanaba is a good example. When the manager form of government was adopted there in 1922, hardly a residential street was paved and there was a large outstanding debt. Since then, practically all of the streets have been paved, public utilities have been rebuilt, enlarged and improved, a sewage disposal plant installed, and beautiful park and recreational areas have been developed along the lake front. Anyone who is familiar with Escanaba has been amazed with what has been accomplished for recreational purposes along the lake shore, and all of this has been accomplished with a lower tax rate now than there was 20 years ago.

It is difficult to make any estimates as to what can be accomplished in Ishpeming, but the commission believes that Ishpeming will benefit just as much as other cities.

Soft Coal Industry Set For Contract

Washington, Nov. 26 (AP)—Virtually the entire soft coal industry, except for southern operators, was reported to be agreed tonight to negotiate for a wage contract on the basis of the agreement worked out by John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers president, and Secretary of Interior Ickes.

Harry M. Moses, spokesman for the "captive" mines owned by steel companies, entered the talks between Lewis and mine operators for the first time today at the urging of Ickes. After the afternoon session, informed sources said he had lined up with the majority in favor of basing a contract on the Ickes-Lewis formula.

POET'S HOME HIT

New York, Nov. 26 (AP) — The Swiss radio said today that the birthplace of Germany's greatest poet, Johann Wolfgang Von Goethe, was hit and severely damaged yesterday in the Allied air assault on Frankfurt.

BREMEN AREA HAMMERED BY U. S. BOMBERS

facturing city of Frankfurt its 39th blasting of the war last night, and swift Mosquito bombers hit Berlin in the fourth straight night attack on that capital shattered by two trip-hammer raids. Thirteen British bombers were lost.

By daylight, U. S. medium Marauders pounded the Pas-De-Calais area of France just across the channel from Dover.

November's score still is four short of the allies' best month of the war—August, when 22 attacks were undertaken.

The Marauders raced out this morning, and in the afternoon other formations of allied planes, many of them fighters, headed out toward Boulogne, also in the Pas-De-Calais section. The targets in this particular area, bombed repeatedly in recent days, never have been specified in allied communiques, prompting speculation that there are objectives of special importance there, perhaps invasion defenses.

The German overseas radio described the Frankfurt raid as moderately heavy, and acknowledged considerable damage to the already heavily-hit city. Many incendiaries were dropped, it added.

Fresh reports trickling through censorship on the devastation there hinted that British fire bombs had caused a large share of the total damage in the heavy assaults Monday and Tuesday nights. A Stockholm newspaper said German officials acknowledged that fully one-fourth of Berlin had been destroyed, much of it by uncontrollable fires.

Disgusted Hunters Get Deer Too Late

Tomahawak, Wis., Nov. 26 (AP)—A couple of Milwaukee hunters had their deer dropped right in their laps today, but it was the wrong kind of a deer and the nimrods didn't appreciate it anyway.

Deerless and disgusted, C. J. Ogram and George M. Galloway, were heading homeward when a big buck leaped into the path of their car, shattering the windshield and injured itself fatally.

The buck season closed Monday. Only does and spike-horns are fair game now.

Charlotte Hospital Gives Babies $100

Charlotte, Mich., Nov. 26. (AP)—There is a $100 savings account waiting for any baby born in the Hayes-Green-Beach hospital here who is named for Fitch H. Beach or his wife, the late Mrs. Anna Gertrude Beach.

The plan for such gifts was announced by Beach, a retired machinery manufacturer and president of the Eaton County Savings Bank, in an advertisement in a local newspaper.

Beach, who has contributed a fortune to civic improvements here, said he would be happy if his offer cost him $5,000 a year.

The hospital was given to Eaton county by Miss R. Ellen Green in memory of Henry H. Hayes, but Beach contributed $25,000 and his name was added to it.
